

Adoptive Parents of Color Collaborative

a project of Pact, an Adoption Alliance

ADOPTIVE PARENTS OF COLOR COLLABORATIVE

Pact's Adoptive Parents of Color Collaborative (APCC) provides BIPOC adoptive parents and their children with much-needed community, support, and education.

BIPOC adoptive parents: APCC provides a space where you can build community, receive and provide peer support, and participate in educational activities with other families who share your experiences. All APCC activities are based on Pact's child-centered, race-conscious, honesty-based approach to adoption.

For years, Pact has walked alongside families of color navigating life after adoption placement. We know the system of adoption has provided uneven access to support and resources for African American, Latinx, Asian and Native American parents. Join our community and help us change this narrative.

YES, WE DO ADOPT!

CENTERING OUR EXPERIENCES AS ADOPTIVE PARENTS OF COLOR.

WE BELIEVE

- ▶ The needs of adopted children of color — including those adopted by parents who share their race—don't end with placement.
- ▶ Even adoptees placed as newborn infants experience the loss of their original families.
- ▶ Adoption is a lifelong journey.
- ▶ Love is the foundation of our families, but love alone is not enough.

For more information, visit our website:
pactadopt.org/adoptive-parents-of-color/

Or contact:
apcc@pactadopt.org

